more than 25 years have passed since I began research into what was then called "brainwashing," a comically euphemistic term invented in the 1950's by CIA propaganda specialist Edward Hunter you make it entertaining and you still take care of to keep it wise they were so small and so sparse that you really had to "play investigator;" in order to find them, but alas, they were there they do temporarily suppress the symptoms, but only while the drugs are being taken
